

RUTGERS

Greenhouse Crop Production

March 7 and March 8, 2018
NJ EcoComplex, Bordentown, NJ
Course Code AC0501CA18

Managing a profitable greenhouse production system and its environment requires extensive knowledge and constant attention to detail. This two-day short course is designed to inform beginners and experienced growers about the latest technologies and practices for greenhouse crop production and to also see how other growers are doing it. The topics will include:

- Production systems
- Pest and disease management
- Irrigation
- Crop fertility
- Economics and marketing
- Specialty crops
- Access to land and right to farm issues

This is a two-day course. The second day will take place at different local greenhouses, giving students the opportunity to view and compare different greenhouse operations and speak directly with the owners. Please note that students will drive themselves to the greenhouse locations.

Registration Fee: $245 before Feb. 21, 2017; $260 after
